

How to Ace your Social Worker Interview

Make a great impression on your interviewer by putting in extra effort to learn about the company beforehand.

Know the Company

Follow a 'Script'

Interviewers will definitely want to know more about you, so prepare an elevator pitch about yourself to summarise your background, skills and personality.

Understand What is Expected of You

Try to understand what's involved with the job and if your skill set and experience matches up with what is described in the job ad.

As a Social Worker, answer your interviewer with stories of your own experience and how you came to a solution to a particularly difficult challenge.

Answer with Stories

Be Positive

Anticipate any problems that your interviewer may flag up such as resume gaps or lack in certain skills and prepare a positive and open-minded response.
